Rome Festive for Marie

Flags, Bunting and Garlands of Flowers Bedeck City As Wedding Nears

ROME, Jan. 6—With a festive air pervading the city, its residents worked furiously today to bedeck Rome in gala array for the wedding of Princess Marie Jose and Crown Prince Humbert Wednesday.

Flags and buntings were hung everywhere. Garlands of flowers were much in evidence. Colored electric bulbs were strung across many streets where street dancing in picturesque native costumes, military processions and religious ceremonies were to be held during the six-day jamboree of joy which will follow the wedding.

While visiting royalties, nobles and prominent personages of Europe continued to arrive, thousands of peasants poured into the city to partake in the festivities.

ACT TO GUARD ROYAL COUPLE

PLANE FLYING BARRED

Wedding of Crown Prince of Italy To Be Held on Wednesday

LONDON, Jan. 6—Because of fears of wholesale assassination plots, the Italian authorities are taking unparalleled precautions to prevent any untoward incident when Princess Marie Jose of Belgium is married to Crown Prince Umberto of Italy on Wednesday, it was revealed today.

A dispatch from the Italian capital to the Evening News today gives striking details of these precautionary measures, whose proportions reveal clearly the fears that are felt that anarchists may attempt attacks on the lives of royalty sometime between now and the time of the marriage.

Airplane flying has been stopped all over Italy, the dispatch declared, until after the wedding because of fears that a plot may be hatched to bomb the beautiful princess and her husband-to-be from the air. The usually busy commercial air-lines of the Italian nation have been brought to an absolute stand-still, and not a propeller will whirl over the Eternal City until the marriage ceremony has been completed and the future queen of Italy is installed in her new home, the Evening News declares.

3 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE AT CONNEAUT

Mother Tries Frantically To Rescue Them as Flames Sweep House

2 JUMP TO SAFETY

Woman Gropes About in Smoke and Fire, Carries Burned Girls Out

CONNEAUT, Jan. 6—Trapped in their blazing home, three of the five children of Mrs. James Scribner were fatally burned today despite the frantic efforts of the mother to rescue them.

The dead are: Florence, 5, Josephine, 3, and Alva, 2 months.

The two other children, Thomas, 13, and Martin, 6, escaped injury by jumping from a second story window. Mrs. Scribner is in a serious condition in a hospital here suffering from shock.

Breaks Way In

The mother found the house in flames on her return from driving her husband to work. Frantic she broke a first floor window and groped about in the smoke and flames and found the two girls whom she carried to safety. The boys were instructed to jump. The girls died in a hospital a few hours later.

The body of 3-months old Alva was found under the kitchen sink after firemen had extinguished the blaze.

PROHIBITION TO RULE CONGRESS

Ghost of Politics Which Walks for 470 Members This Year Also To Lurk

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—Prohibition and politics joined hands today to dominate the proceedings of congress for the balance of this session. Such solid issues as the tariff and railroad consolidation will hold the center of the stage from time to time, but in the wings will be lurking always the grisly spectre of the prohibition controversy, and the ghost of politics which walks this year for 435 members of the house and 35 members of the senate.

They must face primaries in the spring and summer and election in November, and there are many of them who wish heartily that the present prohibition flare-up had never started.

Foresee "Heavy Firing"

The tenth anniversary of the eighteenth amendment, on Jan. 16, will see heavy firing begin all along the prohibition front.

The drys hope by that time to have put through the resolution creating a joint committee of congress to pass upon new legislation to tighten up enforcement.

It is this joint committee, too, that will receive and consider the preliminary report of President Hoover's law-enforcement commission, over which there has been considerable dissension within the commission itself.

Although its members refuse to discuss it, the capital is filled with rumors of a wide split among the 11 men and women who were chosen by President Hoover to find a remedy for public lawlessness. There is a split over prohibition, as well as upon the necessity for a preliminary report which is now in Mr. Hoover's hands.

Undignified, Dissenters Say

Tariff Tops Heavy Legislative Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6— Stirred by a verbal war over prohibition enforcement, the seventy-first congress convened today after a holiday recess to find the year-old tariff bill topping a heavy legislative program.

While the prohibition issue will furnish congress with oratorical fireworks for months to come, its most pressing problems were to dispose of the tariff bill and enact $4,500,000,000 in appropriation bills. After that, the prohibition war probably will occupy the legislative spotlight, since congress intends to enact legislation to carry out all recommendations of President Hoover's law enforcement comission.

The rest of the legislative program will include action on a bill disposing of the $100,000,000 Muscle Shoals project, enactment of prison reform legislation, passage of a bill placing all telephone, telegraph, radio and cable communications under a single federal commission, extension of the government's flood control activities and possibly some legislation on railroad consolidations. This program doubtless will keep congress in session until July or August.

Remarkable Progress of Fairfield Engineering Co. Increases Working Force 20 to 165 in Six Years

Concern Moves Here from Lancaster in 1923 After Fire Destroys Plant

MAKES CONVEYORS

Products in Big Demand with Railroads; Factory Recently Enlarged

BY W. T. BUCHANAN

THE Fairfield Engineering Co., one of the infants in Marion's family of industrial concerns, promises soon to take its place near the head of the table. Six years ago when the company moved into its new factory on Barnhart st, it employed 20 men. During the last summer the company employed 165 persons.

In 1922 the company moved to Marion from Lancaster. Shortly before a fire wiped out the factory there. In looking for a new location for the Fairfield factory Marion was chosen on account of its railroad facilities and other attractions for industries, according to H. B. Walker, the president and founder of the company.

When the plant was located in Lancaster it operated only on a small scale. Six men were employed in the factory. In comparison to this officials of the company point out that the company now employs from 10 to 15 men in the engineering department as draftsmen.

Organized in 1918

The company was organized in 1918 by H. B. Walker. In 1919 Clarence P. Brown, the present treasurer, joined the company. In

ARMY SUPPLY BILL BOOSTED

Appropriation 942,024 Over Last Year Despite Hoover's Slash Proposals

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — In the face of President Hoover's proposals to slash military and naval expenditures, the house appropriations committee today reported the annual army supply bill to the house carrying a total of $355,051,386, which is $942,021 more than was appropriated last year.

At the same time the committee recommended that a provision be incorporated in the bill, which provides army funds for the year beginning next July 1, to enable the president to prevent expenditures if his proposed reorganization plans are successful.

The measure carries $357,858,194 for purely military purposes, which is an increase of $6,519,752 over last year. It carries $117,173,192 for non-military activities, which is $1,577,728 less than last year. The committee, however, slashed budget recommendations a total of $2,767,331.

Explaining the effect of the appropriations, Representative Barbour, (Republican of California, chairman of the *sub-committee, said in the re*port:

"In a general way, employing the language of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, the budget will continue in operation, on about the former basis, the arsenals and other manufacturing establishments. It will maintain the activities of the army substantially as they were in 1929, and it will carry out the housing program, with the exception of deferments of about $1,200,000 due to the limiting figure.

"It will carry out the air corps program for the fourth increment, but it does not make up the shortages brought forward from the balance of the third increment. Nor does it provide for about $4,500,000 of authorized air corps technical construction."

In explaining the failure of the committee to cut army costs, Barbour's report said:

"In July last the president initiated the conduct of a survey of all army activities looking to a retrenchment in military expenditures. The survey is now in progress. No definite conclusions had been reached at the time the accompanying bill was drafted."

BEGIN WORK ON CITY FINANCES

Appropriation Meeting Set for Tuesday; $749,119 Figured as 1930 Revenue

Work of making up the city's pocketbook for 1930 will be started Tuesday morning when the finance committee of city council, Mayor L. Don Jones, City Solicitor Carter Patton, and George T. Gerau, former solicitor, meet in the mayor's office.

An appropriation ordinance to be submitted to council in its regular meeting on Jan. 13, will be prepared, according to officials today.

A total of $749,119.87 is the officially estimated total which the finance committee and officials will carve up so as to permit the functioning of each department of the city. This official estimate was completed this morning by County Auditor Earl R. Thomas.

The estimate completed by Auditor Thomas is as follows: general fund, $355,776.20; street maintenance and repair fund, $75,973.15; general bond retirement fund, $297,370.49; special assessment bond retirement fund, $150,000.

On Dec. 31, all money left in the various departments of the city automatically reverted into the general fund. Various departments of the city were then without funds, and will continue to be without funds until the appropriations are made by council.

This is in compliance with municipal laws which require that money must be appropriated before it can be legally spent.

Flames shooting from the United States Capitol, shortly after seven o'clock on the night of Jan. 3rd. The blaze, starting in a manner not yet determined in a room occupied as a studio by Carl Moberly an artist, spread unchecked to an adjoining document room, while firemen fought frantically to reach the highly inaccessible spot. Five fighters from twenty-seven companies arrived to battle the blaze. Damages to the Capitol were estimated at $5,000 in addition to the loss of some valuable papers.

PLANES STILL ON BOTTOM OF OCEAN

Seven Bodies Not Yet Found; One Craft Is Dragged Near Shore

SANTA MANACO, Cal., Jan. 6—The Pacific ocean today still held the two wrecked and burned moving picture planes which crashed in mid air Thursday, carrying 10 to their deaths.

Seven of the bodies still are missing, including that of Kenneth Hawks, director. The body of Ben Frankel, one of the three recovered, will be shipped to New York for burial today after funeral services.

The Fox Salt has dragged one of the wrecked planes along the ocean floor from a point two miles off shore to within 100 yards of land. An effort was to be made today to bring it to the surface even though divers yesterday declared there were no bodies within it.

Cod Liver Oil Essential Poultry Ration During Winter Feeding

Cod Liver Oil is the best known substitute for sunshine, and should be used in winter feeding when hens are confined to the laying house. Cod Liver Oil should be fed as a preventative and not as a cure for diseases and ills which befall the poultry flock.

Vitamin D prevents rickets and enables hens to produce eggs of higher fertility, better hatchability and with stronger shells. Direct sunshine furnishes ultra violet rays essential to the manufacture of vitamin D. These rays are filtered out of ... shine when it passes through glass. Hence Cod Liver Oil should be fed to hens because it provides ingredients which furnish vitamin D.

These facts are verified by six Agriculture Authorities.

Successful poultrymen obtain good results by adding one ... of biologically tested Cod Liver Oil to 100 pounds of mash or scratch feed to the laying hens.

Experiment has proved that birds fed Cod Liver Oil are ... healthy, and fertility and hatchability of eggs from these ... is increased.

BLONDE QUESTIONED IN OFFICER'S DEATH

Suspect Giving Name as Wilma Haynes Arrested by Youngstown Police

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 6—A blonde woman suspect, who was picked up in ... hotel here last night registered under the name of Wilma Haynes, from an Akron hotel address, was being questioned by police here today in connection with the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul of the Pennsylvania state police.

The woman, according to local authorities, closely resembled the description of the blonde woman sought for the slaying. Paul was shot to death in a gun battle with automobile bandits near New Castle, Pa., last Dec. 27.

Descriptions of the woman being held have been telephoned to Pennsylvania authorities. Akron and Cleveland police have been notified in an effort to check the woman's story.

Miss Haynes said she was from Cleveland, although she registered at a local hotel as from Akron. She was alone when taken into custody.

The blonde woman, who has been hunted by police in three states for the slaying, also began described as about 30 years of age. Miss Haynes, however, gave her age as 22. In almost every other respect, Youngstown police said, Miss Haynes' appearance tallies with the description of the hunted woman killer.

Police Join Search for Dog-Poisoner in Lima

LIMA, Jan. 6—Aroused over the actions of a diabolically-ingenious dog-poisoner, who has fed strichnine to more than a score of dogs within the past 10 days, police and private citizens today combined their efforts in a search for the poisoner.

Chief of Police Kipker was directing the search. He said:

"If we find the person or persons who caused these poisonings, I shall personally see that he is prosecuted to the full limit of the law."

Many valuable household pets were among the dogs which were poisoned. The deadly drug was put in beef pellets.

ARREST MAN, 26, AS HOOK NOSED BANDIT

Suspect Will Face Three Cleveland Young Women for Identification Today

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6—Suspected as the hook-nosed gunman who has been terrorizing Cleveland women by attacking and shooting his victims, Howard Beers, 26, of East Cleveland, who was taken into custody in Detroit yesterday, was returned to Cleveland today for questioning.

Three girls, who have been victimized by the gunman within the past few weeks, will confront Beers today to tell whether or not he was their assailant. The girls are Miss Janet Blood, high school student who was seriously wounded last Friday; Beatrice Gallagher, and Mrs. Mary Pollock.

Suspicion of Beers, however, as the gunman, was jolted early today when Miss Betty Kretz, 18e housemaid, reported to police that a man whom she believed to be the mysterious hook-nosed prowler, attempted to attack her.

Beers, who, according to members of his family, has spent a total of 17 years as an inmate of the Polk Insane asylum at Polk, Pa., was arrested in Detroit on a tip furnished by local authorities. His description, according to police, tallies closely with that of the hook-nosed gunman.

Questioned by Detroit police, Beers was said to have given an incoherent recital of his exploits in Cleveland, which included the "unintentional" shooting of three girls.

GRAND JURY OPENS COURT TERM TODAY

Youth Held on Concealed Weapon Charge Is 21st Case on List

The grand jury which opens the January term of common pleas court began its work at 9 o'clock this morning. Twenty-one charges against 19 persons face the grand jury. The list of cases is one of the largest in recent years.

The number of cases to come before the grand jury was boosted by one this morning when Darrell Lee, 22, of 516 Polk st. was bound over on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Lee was arrested at 9 o'clock last night by city police when he was found at the rear of the Orpheum theater. A .38 calibre revolver was found in his possession, according to police.

As a result of his arrest on the eve of the opening grand jury session Lee will find court procedure to be rapid.

At least two days and perhaps three will be required for the grand jury to consider the list of cases. A report is not expected before Thursday.

Six cases of forgery, two being against women, constitute the largest number of similar cases to come before the grand jury here.

Members of the grand jury are Mrs. Elsie C. Dodd, Charles J. Beyer, Harry Biddle, Bennett Bindley, R. F. Waples, Mrs. Gertrude Last, George A. Wright, John Schneider, Sands K. Gorham, Stewart Glassner, Paul M. Byers, all of Marion, Earl J. Grapps, of Laltue, Mrs. Charles J. Philbrook, of Marion, R. F. D., Clarence A. Keil, of Marion, R. F. D. 5, and W. F. Young Wife Blames Aviation in Divorce Case

COLUMBUS, Jan. 6—The age of the "golf widow" is past. Today is the era of the "aviation widow."

Such is the category in which Mrs. Lydia Rish, 19, of Columbus, placed herself when she sued Herbert Rish, 19, of Kenton, for a divorce here today.

Mrs. Rish charged that her husband devotes all of his time to aviation and paid $3,500 for a Waco airplane, while he neglects to give her any love, affection or support. The couple was married June 20, 1928.

Lancaster Theaters Run on Sunday; 4 Arrested

LANCASTER, Jan. 6—Four managers of local motion picture theaters were arrested here today on police warrants following the operation of their shows here yesterday in defiance of the Sunday blue laws.

The confession was obtained after several hours' grilling by Inspector Murray of the Massachusetts state police force and Lenahan, a Saugus policeman, aided by Philadelphia detectives.

COMMISSIONERS WIN ULSH DITCH VERDICT

Board and County Court Are Upheld in Decision by Appeals Judges

After being delayed about three years by court litigation, the Ulsh ditch in Marion and Claridon townships moved a step nearer the construction stage today when the third district court of appeals upheld the common pleas court in a decision handed down a year ago.

Frank G. Ulsh and others petitioned the county commissioners for the construction of the ditch about three years ago. The petition was granted over the protest of several interested land owners.

The protesting land owners carried the case to the common pleas court. Judge George B. Scofield affirmed the action of the commissioners. The case was then carried to the court of appeals on error. The decision of the higher court sustains the action of the commissioners and the common pleas court.

Attorney W. P. Moloney represented the protesting land owners. After retiring as prosecuting attorney, Attorney Frank Wiedemann represented Ulsh and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donithen, who represented the commissioners in the trial of the case in the common pleas court and the court of appeals.

PREPARES REPORT ON CITY'S MILK SUPPLY

Nearly 3,000 Gallons Received Here Daily, Inspector Announces

Nearly 3,000 gallons of milk, coming from 329 shippers, are sent into Marion each day, according to an annual report just prepared by Dr. J. T. Gruber, inspector of meats and milk. The report will probably be read before the city board of health in its meeting this afternoon.

Practically all of the milk consumed here is pasturized, according to Dr. Gruber. Only one shipper sends in raw milk, his daily output averaging 35 gallons.

A total of 355 permits to ship milk into this city were granted shippers during 1929, according to Dr. Gruber's report. Eighty-six permits were refused.

Dr. Gruber during the year condemned 1,880 gallons of milk which was found to be unfit for consumption. Numerous tests of the milk being consumed here, including 2,677 sediment tests and 152 bacteria count tests were made during the year.

Pasturized milk, with an average bacteria count of about 20,000 had approximately one-fifth the number of bacteria contained in the raw milk.

Approximately 5,500 miles were driven by Dr. Gruber in his work during 1929.

Senator Dill Protests Language Used in Shreveport Broadcast

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—The federal radio commission was called upon today by Senator Dill, Democrat of Washington, to revoke the broadcasting license of station KWKH at Shreveport, La., or to initiate criminal prosecution of its owner because of his use of "obscene language" on the air.

Dill read a telegram to the senate from L. C. Watrous of Minneapolis, complaining against "constant cursing" on the air by the operator of the Shreveport station. Dill said he also had heard the broadcaster using obscene language.

The radio law makes it a crime to swear over a radio.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6—Assured of the support of the Cleveland and Ohio Federations of Labor, 5,000 workers in the ladies' garment trades here will meet en masse at 6 p. m. today to ratify a general strike and probably agree upon a date for the walkout.

Benjamin Schlesinger, New York president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, is expected to arrive here today in time to address the mass meeting and to take active charge of the strike.

YOUTH CRAZED BY STUDY KILLS FATHER

Wounds Mother Who Wrests Gun Away from Boy and Discharges It

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 6—Allan R. Schumm, 17, was being held in a hospital observation ward today after he summoned his parents from bed, ordered them to pray, and then shot his father dead and wounded his mother. The youth is a freshman student at Illinois university.

Authorities believe he was suffering from a temporary mental derangement due to overstudy.

Returning from a party at the home of Elsa Winkler, 16, a girl friend, young Schumm called his parents into the parlor shortly after 2 a. m. Sunday. He asked them if they believed in God.

"Of course," his surprised father answered.

"Then start praying," was the youth's command.

The parents did not comply and Schumm drew a borrowed pistol and started shooting. His father staggered to a hallway and fell dead.

The boy pursued his mother who sought shelter in a closet. As he pressed the revolver to her she wrestled it from his grasp and emptied it by shooting into the floor.

Schumm snatched up the revolver and fled in the family automobile. He hurled the gun into the Mississippi river, then went to a friend's house where he gave himself up to police and admitted the shooting. He was unable to give an explanation for the shooting, however.

CONFESSION SOLVES MURDER IN DETROIT

Hotel Engineer Says He Killed Man While Driving in Auto

DETROIT, Jan. 6—Twelve hours of constant questioning by Dearborn detectives, resulted today in Jack Bell, an engineer at a downtown hotel, confessing that he murdered Fred Gill, 18, early Sunday.

Gill had been shot through the head and at first it was believed he had been murdered by gangsters. A ticket for an automobile on a private parking lot adjacent to the hotel in which Bell works, gave police their first clue. They questioned Bell, in a room at the Gill home, and then took him into custody. William Green, 22, bellboy at the hotel, also was arrested.

Bell, after first denying the crime, finally admitted he had shot Gill while driving the latter to his home early Sunday morning.

YOUTH ACCUSED OF BURGLARY ESCAPES

LeRoy Clark, 16, Drops from Bathroom Window of Detention Home

LeRoy Clark, 16, held on a burglary charge, escaped from the county detention home about 9 o'clock last night, juvenile court officials were advised.

The youth made his escape by crawling through the bars on the bathroom window and dropping to the ground. His escape was discovered a few minutes after it was made, according to Addison Bain, husband of the detention home matron.

Clark and Chester Culver, 16, were being held in the detention home on a charge of burglarizing the Adams & Son grocery on Silver st. The boys were caught in the act of burglarizing the store last Thursday night, according to police.

A search by city police and juvenile court officers last night and this morning failed to reveal any trace of the missing youth.

Culver will be sentenced to the Lancaster boys' industrial school, Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast stated this morning. Clark has already served a period in the school.

Shootings of Trio at Covington, Ky., Investigated by Police

COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 6—With three men in local hospitals suffering from bullet wounds, which may cause the death of two of them, police today sought to clear up the mystery which surrounds the shootings.

David Jerus, who, according to police, is widely known in underworld circles as "Jew Baby," and Lawrence Contes, another alleged gangster, are believed to have been unceremoniously dumped out of an automobile on the steps of Booth Memorial hospital here. Jerus had been shot in the abdomen and is expected to die. Contes had a bullet wound in the back. He may recover.

At St. Elizabeth hospital, Charles Stubbs, 20, is in a critical condition with two bullet wounds in his abdomen. He may die. Stubbs told several different stories as to how he had been shot. He first said he had shot himself accidentally, but later said he was wounded in an exchange of bullets with two men who, he thought, were going to take me for a ride." He said he knew of no reason why the underworld should seek his death.

YOUTH GETS ROUGH

And All Because Officer Wouldn't Call His Girl at Oberlin

ELYRIA, Jan. 6—After having staged a gunplay exhibition with a policeman, George Lenko, 22, was being held here today under investigation and for possible court proceedings.

Lenko, according to police, approached Patrolman P. Derkline in downtown Elyria yesterday.

"I want you to telephone my girl at Oberlin and find out why she is returning my letters unopened," the youth is said to have demanded of the officer.

When Derkline showed no inclination to telephone Oberlin but instead called a patrol wagon, Lenko, according to the patrolman, grabbed the officer's revolver from its holster, and fired.

TO PROBE SHORTAGE

Grand Jury Will Act on State Examiners' Pipua Report Today

TROY, Jan. 6—A grand jury today will deliberate upon the report of State Examiner Frank R. Thomas, who found alleged shortages of $7,274 in the accounts of the city of Piqua, near here.

Thomas placed a finding against former City Auditor A. Omer Patterson, charging that the man, who has since resigned from the public position, was responsible for $4,500 of the alleged shortages.

Friends of the former auditor are said to have made up the amount and paid it to the Piqua city treasury.

Other descrepancies, such as "book-keeping adjustments" were mentioned in the state examiner's report.

COUNCIL TRYING TO AVOID OUSTER FIGHT

Hopkins Offered Another Job To Quit City Managership at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6—With the induction of a new city council tonight a matter of but a few hours, Cleveland's political condition was to a state of unrest today pending the ouster movement against City Manager William R. Hopkins and the demoralizing blow by party politics to the city manager plan of government.

Despite Hopkins' flat refusal to resign his office, the Republican majority of the new council will make a last effort to avoid an ouster fight today by offering Hopkins employment as city gas expert in exchange for his resignation. This failing, ouster proceedings will probably be filed against Hopkins next Monday.

It is expected that the city manager will spurn the offer and defy the Republican majority of council to action.

Under the rules of the city charter, an ouster movement would have to be conducted upon a trial. Specific charges would have to be placed against Hopkins. It is expected that if ouster proceedings are inaugurated, one of the charges will be based on the manager's testimony in the recent land fraud trials here.

The Republican majority of council is certain of enough votes to oust Hopkins, but is almost hopelessly divided on the selection of his successor. They will caucus tonight for the third time just before the new council's induction.

No prison can be made so delightful that prisoners wouldn't rather be outside, even with less to eat.

Hopkins Offered Another Job To Quit City Managership at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6—With the induction of a new city council tonight a matter of but a few hours, Cleveland's political condition was to a state of unrest today pending the ouster movement against City Manager William R. Hopkins and the demoralizing blow by party politics to the city manager plan of government.

Despite Hopkins' flat refusal to resign his office, the Republican majority of the new council will make a last effort to avoid an ouster fight today by offering Hopkins employment as city gas expert in exchange for his resignation. This failing, ouster proceedings will probably be filed against Hopkins next Monday.

It is expected that the city manager will spurn the offer and defy the Republican majority of council to action.

Under the rules of the city charter, an ouster movement would have to be conducted upon a trial. Specific charges would have to be placed against Hopkins. It is expected that if ouster proceedings are inaugurated, one of the charges will be based on the manager's testimony in the recent land fraud trials here.

The Republican majority of council is certain of enough votes to oust Hopkins, but is almost hopelessly divided on the selection of his successor. They will caucus tonight for the third time just before the new council's induction.

No prison can be made so delightful that prisoners wouldn't rather be outside, even with less to eat.

CONFIRM MARRIAGE

Mystery Cleared as Bride's Parents Make Announcement

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—The mystery surrounding the marriage of Conger P. Whitehead, millionaire New York and Atlanta sportsman, to Miss Marion Hughes, had been cleared here today by confirmation of the wedding by the bride's parents.

Whitehead and Miss Hughes were married here Nov. 14 by Bronx County Judge Barrett in his chambers.

Mrs. Whitehead is the daughter of Walter A. Hughes, broker who resides at the Hotel Sherry Netherlands. Her mother, Mrs. Marion Dean Hughes, is the daughter of the late John E. Dean, real estate operator and capitalist of Chicago, for whom Dean Square in that city was named.

The Whiteheads now are living in Havana.

Four More Families in Smallpox Quarantine

Four additional families were under quarantine for smallpox today as the result of action of health officials over the weekend.

The families are: Mrs. John Beed, 144 Scioto st.; Roscoe Rathbun, 295 Pere-9 st.; Mrs. Corigan, 1... Pennsylvania av.; John Hlazian, ... 750 Merkel ar.

Unconfirmed cases of smallpox in three of the families accounted for their quarantine. Suspected smallpox in the Higgins home was responsible for health officials placing a contagious disease card on the home.

BASKETBALL HOLDS SPORT SPOTLIGHT

SPORTS Here 'n There

BY FRANK G. MENKE

"——and Landis walked out of the room."

What room?

Why, his own hotel room into which he had invited baseball officials who hoped that he had the wisdom, the patience, the genius and the courage to—maybe—make one of baseball's messiest situations.

Apparently proving that those who earlier had hailed him as the "Saviour of Baseball" made a slight error. It should have been the "Save Yourself of Baseball."

In an earlier crisis in his career, this courageous gentleman had a door slammed in the face of Harney Dreyfuss. That kept trouble out. In the most recent situation he couldn't keep the trouble out, so he loped away from it.

* * *

THEY hoisted the legal dude into the job as high commissioner of baseball. Paid him an enormous salary. Gave him powers greater than a Czar. Practically vested in him "life——and——death" authority in all affairs pertaining to organized baseball.

"——and Landis walked out of the room," and left a lot of folks squabbling among themselves.

That event happened at the recent baseball meeting in New York. The National league, sorely distressed over the Brooklyn situation, appealed to Landis to try to straighten it out. It had tried in its own way to bring harmony—and had failed. So Landis, the "saviour" and the "great and powerful diplomat," was called upon.

* * *

HE took a few look-sees at Irate man, he listened to a few explatives buzzing around in the ozone and then he walked out of the room, away from the scene and eventually hid ducked the town.

"Saviour of baseball—eh?"

Wilbert Robinson is president and manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, due to the vote of the Ebbets family which controls 50 per cent. of the stock. The McKeever folks, representing the other 50 per cent., want Wilbert bodied out. But 50 per cent. isn't enough to push "Robby"—he won't jump—and thus he lingers on.

During all this rumpussing, which has gone on for a few seasons, the Dodgers have become a bull team more in name than fact. They are derelicts. Patronage fell off in dismal fashion, affecting not only the treasury of the Brooklyn club but the entire National league.

* * *

JOHN HEYDLER has made repeated and valiant efforts to bring order out of the Brooklyn chaos. But without result. John is only a league president and does not possess the tremendous power that belongs to Landis. So, in this dire emergency where the entire league faces certain devastation by the war between Robinson and the McKeever faction, Heydler made a plea to Landis; he sobbed the "SOS" hoping that the "Saviour" would step in and do something to live up to his title.

Heydler escorted the delegation into Landis' room. Steve McKeever was there; so was Frank York, representing the Ed McKeever estate. Robinson was there. He glared at McKeever, who glared back. They snarled at each other; they spoke words—and what words those words were! And right in the presence of the "Saviour" too.

What did the "Saviour" do?

* * *

HE saved himself from further shocks by grabbing his okumner and then——" Landis walked out of the room.

Good Ol' "Save Yourself Ken."

But perhaps one shouldn't be too harsh in guessing the reason why Landis quit the scene. Maybe it wasn't because he lacked the gameness needed to linger around and battle those two sputtering civilians into submission so as to help baseball. Ken may want to be on the 1932 Olympic team and decided at the particular moment that he needed sprinting practice!

Or maybe he just wanted to hustle back to Chicago and get a little advice from a man who NEVER RAN, who had COURAGE and could unscramble an omelette like the Brooklyn thing with consummate ease.

Meaning—Ban Johnson!

HARDING WILL OPEN N. C. O. SCHEDULE HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Church Leagues, Shovel Loop and St. Mary's Round Out Local Card

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

WITH Christmas and New Year's vacations at the end, Marion sport fans will settle down to a grind that will carry them through the season of winter activities. Starting this week basketball, bowling, wrestling and boxing will fight it out for a place in the local sport-light of popularity.

Boxing and wrestling will be absent from this week's schedule. Next Monday night a mat show is planned when the Eagles are expecting to open the 1930 boxing season on Monday, Jan. 20. Promoters are completing arrangements for both bills.

Harding high school headlines the cage program this week opening a North Central Ohio League season against Mansfield in Star auditorium, Friday night.

The locals have played three games so far this season and the results have been far from encouraging. Friday night the Red and Black will attempt to chalk up its first victory of the season and start off the league season on the right foot. With this in view, Coach Compton will drive his team hard all week. Practices will be held every afternoon in Star auditorium. The team has been showing fair defensive strength but lacks offensive drive.

St. Mary's will attempt to avenge the shoutout defeat handed them two weeks ago by Zanesville when the two quintets clash Thursday night in Star auditorium. Zanesville boasts one of the strongest defensive quints in the state and will attempt to keep its record clean against the Marion five. Since piping the Zanesville team, the Saints have won over Norwalk and Columbus Aquinas. Both these games were defensive classics. Neither team is expected to do much scoring in the tiny Tuesday night at 8:15 o'clock.

After giving coaches a chance to look over material in playing one set of games before the holiday season, the Marion County Church league will start its annual pennant scramble Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A.

The following games are scheduled:

Senior league: Trinity Baptist vs Central Christian, No. 2; Epworth vs First Presbyterian; Calvary vs. Waldo; Central Christian, No 1 vs. United Brethren.

Intermediate league: Trinity vs. Epworth, No. 2; Presbyterians vs Calvary; Central Christian vs Epworth No. 1.

Marion's new Steam Shovel league will attempt to put its aggregations in the background to play its second round of games Thursday night. The following contests are on the books:

Foundry vs. Machinists, Production vs. Structural, Accountants vs Spades, Dyer vs. Engineers.

The roaming Y-Indys quintet has two games on foreign courts this week. Wednesday night the locals will attempt to repeat their victory over Pestoria. Saturday the Bowling Green college reserves will furnish the opposition to the Y club Saturday night.

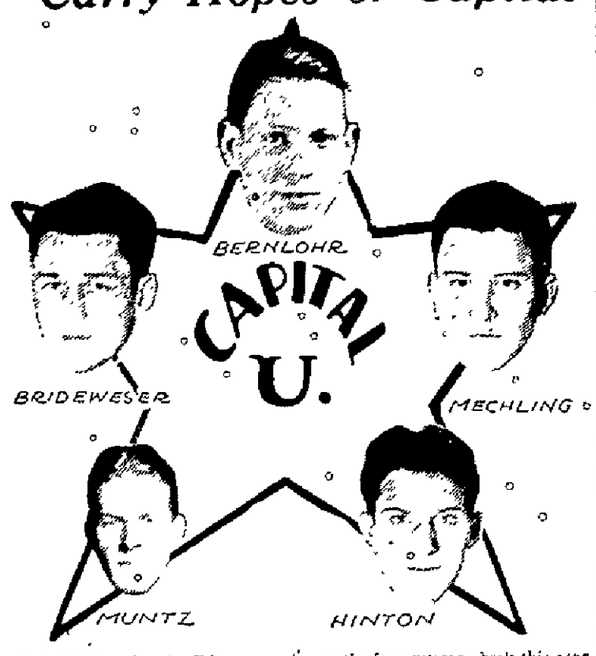
Quintet of Stars Will Carry Hopes of Capital



COLUMBUS, Jan. 6—When young "Bill" Bernlohr, just two years out of college, opens Capital university's Conference basketball season on Jan. 8 with Muskingum, he will rely upon four ace, that will cause Capital opposition not a little trouble this year.

Bernlohr, the youngest college athletic director and coach in the Middle West, will rely on Mechling at center, Brideweser and Muntz as guards, and Hinton as forward. Mechling is from Glenford, Brideweser from Bolivar, while Muntz and Hinton hail from Canton.

Last season, in an 18 game schedule that included 12 Ohio Conference opponents, the Lutherans scored an even dozen victories. Largely responsible in this successful campaign were the four veterans back this year. Mechling led the scoring last season with 151 points, while Brideweser was hot on his trail with 152.

In the two pre-season games played thus far this year, Capital has defeated Antioch by a score of 35-18 and Bluffton by a 43-27 count. Mechling scored 30 points in these two starts, while Brideweser scored 15 in the Bluffton battle.

While a student at Capital, Coach Bernlohr was a great athlete. He won 11 varsity letters at the Lutheran college and captained seven Capital varsity squads in three major sports. He led the Capital basketball quintet for four years. He graduated in 1927 and coached Butler (Pa.) High for two years before returning to his alma mater.

Garden Still Searching for Secret of Big Bouts

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—It was just one year ago today that Tex Rickard passed quietly on to another life in a hospital down at Miami, Fla., when he had gone to lay the corner stone for one of those monuments to his genius ons a promoter of prize fights. Much has happened in the year intervening but I doubt whether any of it has been really important for when Rickard died the secret of the multi-million dollar spectacle apparently died with him.

An artless Texan, something of an idealist in his unlettered simplicity, he made millions for others and left boxing forever in his debt. I think it is typical of this breathless age that his anniversary seems to be passing New York by almost unheeded and that Madison Square Garden whose every brick and stone is a living tribute to the promoter, hardly bears an echo of his name today.

The men still seek the secret of his genius even though they look for it without a thought for the man to whom it came by nature's endowment. They could use some of it in their present difficulties with the heavyweight fighters of the day but the man himself not only is forgotten but most of his organization is disenfranchised. It is the latter who are not forgetting.

One of them, Jim Dorgan, is even now writing his inner-office account of the Richard regime, a biography from the pen of one who can make the real Rickard live again in colors that harmonize with that most vivid of personalities. Much that was arrant fiction has been printed about Rickard, whereas the real story of the man defies fiction and makes it seem dull and wholly unimagined.

I have no way of knowing whether Dorgan holds the key to Rickard's secret of successful promotion. If any man does, Dorgan is he, for theirs was one of those instinctive understandings that require no words to express its thoroughness. They were together from the moment Rickard opened the doors of the old Garden until Tunney fought his last fight as heavyweight champion, sharing worries and triumphs, foreboding and elation in that silent way of theirs.

Rickard wore the mask in life. His conversation was forceful and blunt but you sensed that often he was repressing his real thoughts—thoughts hidden deep under that garish gambler's mask of his.

GRIFFITHS WOULD BE SET-UP, SHARKEY TELLS MIAMI FANS

"Give Me an Opponent and I'll Fight," Boston Gob Says

MIAMI, Jan. 6—The tanned residents of this city, usually very attentive to what the wild waves are saying, have no ear for such trifles today. Jack Sharkey has arrived.

Accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey and their two children, America's heavyweight champion, rolled into Miami last night, the old vocal chords hitting on their accustomed six. With the red cape still hanging around for their tips, Jack launched into his first oration.

"Give me an opponent and I'll fight," he declared. "But I don't want Madison Square Garden to feed me any one like Griffiths—there's a fight, my boy, that wouldn't draw its breath. People would get the idea that I was touring the country in search of setups."

He came up for air and continued. "I don't want another like last year. Stribling is a good fighter, but his style made me fight a bad appearing fight. I don't want another like that any more than the fans do."

"I don't know how the fight stands now. Before I left Boston it was off and on three times in three hours. When I left it was off, but when I got to Richmond it was on again, according to a Richmond paper."

In his full vocal stride now, the tearful Sharkey man seemed to need no ear.

"This is a vacation trip for me and the family. I'm going to do the things I didn't do when I was training last year, play some golf at Biarritz and swim and loaf in the sunshine."

Jack said on a percentage basis with the Garden as his contract called for, a Tuffy Griffiths fight would be more expensive for him than a winter vacation trip here.

"But the money isn't the most important thing," he concluded. "The Garden is trying to stage another heavyweight elimination contest and that's not necessary as far as I'm concerned. Give me an opponent for a real fight and I'll do the eliminating."

Calvary Juniors Swamped by Epworth No. 1, 58-12

Other scores were: Trinity 1s Presbyterian 13; Epworth Midgets 15, Chapman 0.

Approximately 1,000 Marion Steam Shovel Co employes and their families and guests attended a special entertainment Saturday night in the recreation hall of the plant. The program was arranged by a committee consisting of F. W. Brosh, C. E. Silva, and F. E. Kemmerly.

Roberta Evans and Jessie Holbrook, of Bucyrus, played several accordion numbers and sang. Music between acts was furnished by Mrs. Bert Swope's Harding Hotel band. Four harmonica solos were played by Joe Cottmer, of Ada, followed by six numbers by the Knights of Columbus quartet consisting of Frank Butterworth, John McAndrew, C. L. Silva, and N. G. Irvin, accompanied at the piano by Paul Mellor.

Following the program dancing was enjoyed and light refreshments were served by a committee consisting of C. T. Brechtel, William Evans, and Ted Frericks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—Thanks to the 22 points he garnered against the New York A. C. in the opening game, Joey Schaaf, one time Penn captain, now ace of the Penn A. C. five, leads in the individual scoring race of the eastern interclub basketball league at the end of the first week of play.

Muskine, with 12 points, holds second position.

BIG NINE CAGE RACE TO OPEN IN EARNEST WITH TWO CONTESTS

Ohio State Meets Illinois, Michigan Plays Minnesota Tonight

CHICAGO, Jan. 6—With the veteran Wisconsin basketball team allegedly fallen victim to Northwestern, the Western conference championship race will get under way in earnest tonight with four big ten teams in action.

Although the Badgers were one half of the conference crown in the season's opener against Northwestern they were handed a 20 to 14 defeat. That, too, in the face of the fact that Northwestern had one of its regular guards in the hospital.

Michigan, wearing the other half of last season's crown, will play first conference game of the year against Minnesota at Minneapolis. Ohio State is to play Illinois at Champaign, Ill.

Two individuals in Michigan's team tonight will be playing their first conference game. Joe Downing is one and the other is Hank Weiss. Weiss although small of stature, has replaced Kraus, one of last year's regulars.

Downing has been given Fred Lovell's place at floor guard. Downings home is at Frankfort, Ind. Orwig, Trpkowski and Captain Chapman will round out the quintet.

Ohio State is presenting practically the same team as last year with Wesner, center, as the only newcomer. Larkins and Fesler are at the guards and Evans and Braun are forwards.

Will Remodel Building to Double Floor Space of Business

PURCHASES PROPERTY

Structure Now Occupied by Clothier Bought from Strelitz Estate

Coincident with the announcement today that Jim Dugan, clothier, had purchased the building occupied by his store on North Main st., came the announcement that the building would be remodeled to provide more commodious quarters for the store.

Work of remodeling has already started in the basement of the building. It is Dugan's plan to close the rear half of the first floor while remodeling operations are in progress in that section of the building. The store will not be closed if it can be avoided, Dugan stated.

Next week a remodeling sale will start in order to reduce the stock so that it can be moved into the front portion of the first floor.

When the remodeling is completed the floor space of the store will be practically doubled. A balcony will be constructed at the rear of the first floor. The second floor will also be converted to use as a sales room.

According to Dugan a number of departments will be added to the store and others will be enlarged.

Dugan purchased the building from the Strelitz estate, of which Attorney J. Malcolm Strelitz is executor.

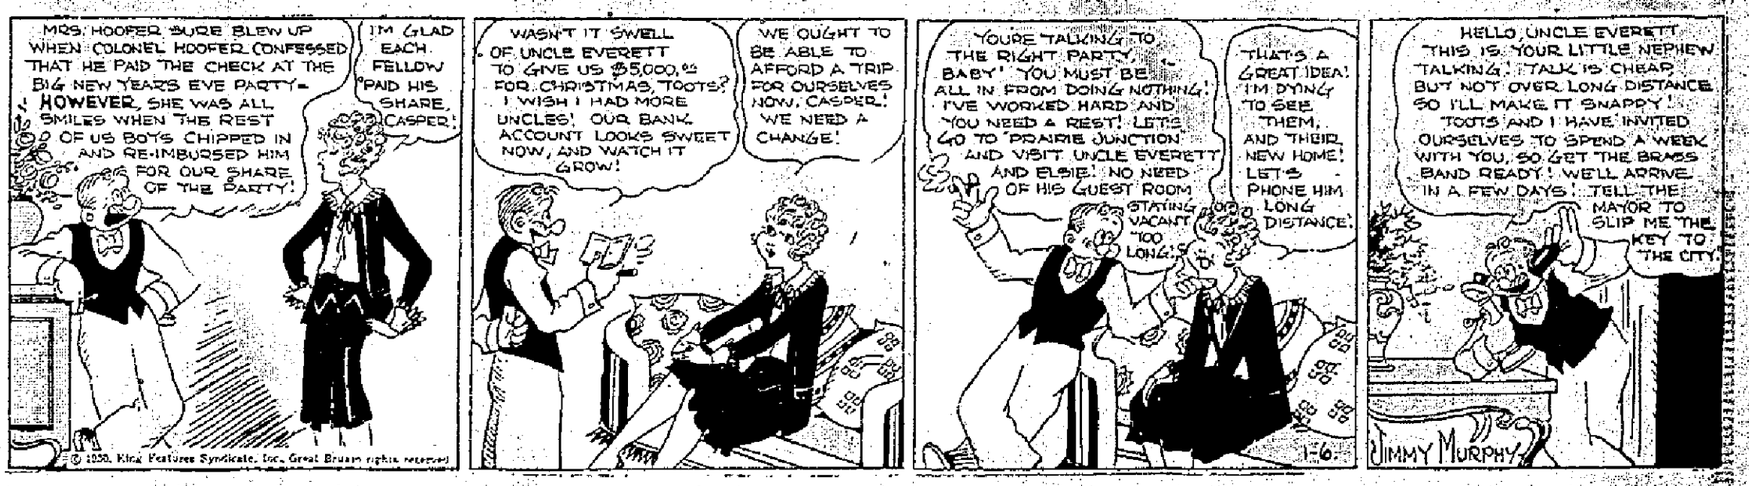
TOOTS AND CASPER — BY JIMMY MURPHY



MRS. HOOPER SURE BLEW UP WHEN COLONEL HOOPER CONFESSED THAT HE PAID THE CHECK AT THE BIG NEW YEARS EVE PARTY - HOWEVER, SHE WAS ALL SMILES WHEN THE REST OF US BOYS CHIPPED IN AND RE-IMBURSED HIM FOR OUR SHARE OF THE PARTY!
I'M GLAD EACH FELLOW PAID HIS SHARE, CASPER!
WASN'T IT SWELL OF UNCLE EVERETT TO GIVE US $5,000.00 FOR CHRISTMAS, TOOTS? I WISH I HAD MORE UNCLES! OUR BANK ACCOUNT LOOKS SWEET NOW, AND WATCH IT GROW!
WE OUGHT TO BE ABLE TO AFFORD A TRIP FOR OURSELVES NOW, CASPER! WE NEED A CHANGE!
YOU'RE TALKING TO THE RIGHT PARTY, BABY! YOU MUST BE ALL IN FROM DOING NOTHING! I'VE WORKED HARD AND YOU NEED A REST! LET'S GO TO PRAIRIE JUNCTION AND VISIT UNCLE EVERETT AND ELSIE! NO NEED OF HIS GUEST ROOM STAYING VACANT TOO LONG!
THAT'S A GREAT IDEA! I'M DYING TO SEE THEM, AND THEIR NEW HOME! LET'S PHONE HIM LONG DISTANCE!
HELLO, UNCLE EVERETT, THIS IS YOUR LITTLE NEPHEW TALKING! TALK IS CHEAP, BUT NOT OVER LONG DISTANCE, SO I'LL MAKE IT SNAPPY! TOOTS AND I HAVE INVITED OURSELVES TO SPEND A WEEK WITH YOU, SO GET THE BRASS BAND READY! WE'LL ARRIVE IN A FEW DAYS! TELL THE MAYOR TO SLIP ME THE KEY TO THE CITY.

Review of Last Week's Grain Market

CHICAGO, Jan. 6—World wheat prices turned easy and sold off to lower levels the latter part of the past week. In the local market the decline was due to lack of buying power and declines in foreign markets caused by the exporting of wheat from Russia. Foreign demand for domestic wheat continued quiet.

Speculative interest in coarse grains and rye continued very small and lower price levels were largely due to sympathetic action with wheat. Corn dragged lower, with poor quality marketings exerting some influence.

At the close Saturday wheat prices were 3½@3½c lower compared with the previous week's finish. Corn was 1½2c down; oats, ¼@¾c lower, and rye, 2⅝@3c off.

The feature in the local market at the close of the week was the lack of buying interest. This is naturally ascribed by pit observers to the discouraging situation which has confronted wheat holders, with the exception of a few brief periods, ever since August.

While many factors show improvement, traders still see little basis for aggressive activity on the constructive side. The foreign demand, expected to improve with the turn of the year, is still quiet, and the export market was further upset with the appearance in the picture of Russia.

Although shipments so far from the latter country have been very small, they are considered rather significant. From what reports have been available throughout the season, the principal deterrent to exports from Russia has been transportation difficulty. Clearances of substantial amounts of barley and some wheat indicate a betterment of these conditions and forecast larger shipments from next year's crop.

Expect Choppy Market

There is still a disposition to be skeptical regarding very small Argentine figures and acceptance of even the smallest causes no alarm over shortage of wheat in the world. Naturally, purchase of 400,000,000 bu. or the bulk of remaining requirements of import countries would be expected to advance prices considerably, but speculators show little disposition to commit themselves until clearances increase.

The period of crop scares is not far off, but optimistic bulls look for little incentive from news of the winter crop. A harvest of 575,000,000 bu. last year from a winter crop beset with adversities is expected to check great enthusiasm over possible damage reports to the new crop which with a larger acreage went into winter dormancy in a condition many points above the average, indicating a probable yield of over 600,000,000 bu. which with a moderate carryover would supply domestic requirements next year regardless of the spring yield.

One has to work so much harder to commune with nature in the winter. It has mostly gone into hiding.

About Margins

During the past few years margains have occupied a very prominent place in the public eye.

Long ago wise people discovered the value of a margin, a sum set aside for emergencies, misfortunes and opportunities. These far-sighted people build up margins, but they keep them on savings accounts where they cause no loss of sleep.

INSURANCE OFFICIAL GIVES ADDRESS HERE

Don C. McKinnon, Newark, N. J., Speaker at Local Meeting of Underwriters

Don C. McKinnon, of Newark, N. J., special home office representative of the Prudential Insurance Co., was the guest speaker at a meeting of the Marion Association of Life Underwriters in the grill room of Hotel Harding at noon yesterday.

In the talk, Mr. McKinnon said there were two ways of developing and creating an estate. First, the ordinary plan of saving a certain amount and loaning and saving and personal or private and the life insurance plan. He said that the first plan is dependent entirely upon living, keeping good health, and working with confidence, and adequate earning power. The life insurance plan, he said, creates immediately the estate desired and the insured pays for it through the years.

A membership committee was appointed by the president to arrange for a membership drive for the local association before the next monthly meeting in February. C. C. Steward was appointed chairman and will be assisted by R. G. Mish, Leroy Andrews, Fred Dornbrook and F. B. Graham. The membership committee will also meet in a few days to discuss the observance of Life Insurance day.

Those attending the meeting were C. G. Bloomquist, F. B. Graham, P. H. Neidig, Miss Bertha Park, E. L. Weimer, Reed M. Wintergardner, R. W. Kaeble, C. E. Hoffman, R. G. Williamson, E. C. Seifert, W. F. Schweinfurth, Tom Lash, G. H. Scott, R. E. Marble, D. K. Morgan, C. G. Masteron and Hollis A. Slagle, of Delaware.

She looked so well groomed yet "B.O." (Body Odor) spoiled it all until...

HER clothes were perfection. Her hair always beautifully arranged. She was the picture of exquisite neatness. And yet—

A "one-date" girl, somebody called her. Men took her out once—and once only. Women friends quickly drifted away. She felt her loneliness keenly—became almost ill worrying over it. Then, consulting her physician, she learned the truth. "B.O."—body odor... Today she is popular—has a wide circle of friends. She knows the easy way to keep perspiration odorless.

* * *

"B.O." is treacherous. The daintiest-looking person may offend—and never know it! Even on coldest winter days our pores give off a quart of odor-causing waste. Our sense of smell becomes so used to this familiar odor that we don't notice it in ourselves. But others do.

Why risk offending? Adopt Lifebuoy, the favorite toilet soap of millions. Its mild, creamy antiseptic lather makes you feel gloriously clean—utterly safe—purifies pores so deeply that "B.O." hasn't a chance.

Complexions thrive on Lifebuoy

Money can't buy a finer complexion soap than Lifebuoy. It acts like a tonic on dull, sallow skins—makes them fairly bloom with fresh, clear, healthy, radiant beauty. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

You should never have even a puncture

IN THE early days of the four-ply balloon, General reduced the puncture hazard about 90 per cent by bringing out the six-ply. Now General leads on ahead again with the DUAL-Balloon "8."

As surely as General's six-ply balloon changed the four-ply standard of the industry—the new DUAL-Balloon carries General still farther ahead. It should enable you to look back upon season after season of the pleasure of puncture-less driving.

With rubber costs going up and tire prices still based on the old low cost, why worry along on anything less than the General?

...on the skis it's BALANCE!

...in a cigarette it's TASTE!

IT is a curious fact that the best-tasting cigarette is the one in which no single taste quality is too evident. Over-mildness, for example—or over-richness—shows lack of "balance" just as plainly as harshness or bitterness.

On this basis, test Chesterfield. Aroma, smoothness, satisfying goodness, flavor, mildness, all present—but none emphasized at the expense of others. The one goal is taste—better taste, balanced taste—

"TASTE above everything"

Search Patrol Boats for Missing Liquor

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—While some two dozen coast guardsmen prepared to face trial today on charges of intoxication, officers continued their search of patrol boats and destroyers for liquor missing from the captured rum-runner, Flor Del Mar.

The possibility that another general court martial may follow that of the 24 was seen today following the discovery of five bottles of the missing liquor on the destroyer, Shaw, when it returned last night from a six-day cruise of coastal waters.

In addition to the bottles found on the Shaw, Capt. L. T. Chalker, chief of staff of the destroyer force, admitted that liquor had also been discovered on other service boats but declined to reveal the amount or the number of men involved until a complete check could be made.

Capt. G. T. Finley of the Shaw, said that not more than four men were involved in the liquor hidden on his ship and that he had made no arrests.

The Flor Del Mar, with 4,000 cases aboard, was captured the same night on which nine members of the Black Duck were killed by coast guardsmen.

QUICKEST WAY TO END COLDS SHOWN BY TESTS IN HOSPITAL

Many Here Benefit by Action of Doctors in Naming Ayer Remedy as Best of Different Widely Used Methods Tested for Head Colds, Coughs and Chest Colds

...ny head colds clear up quick...—coughing is stopped in two to ...ree minutes—and even severe colds ...sted in the hospital have disappeared in a day or so—when ended at ...ce by a method now advised by ...spital physicians as a result of ex...ensive tests.

Nose Cleared Up—Head Cold Quickly Ended

The case of J. R. Hayes is typical. Mr. Hayes contracted a stuffy head cold while sitting near an open window in a street car. In spite of the different preparations he used, the cold grew worse — spreading from his nose down into the breathing passages.

Then he called on the hospital clinic for advice. Doctors there gave him Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of ingredients which hospitals have found to be the quickest to end colds.

With the first swallow he felt its comforting, healing warmth—from nose passages deep down into his chest. Relief began instantly and in a day or so the cold was completely gone.

Soon Back at School—Rid of Threatening Cold

Still another of the many grateful users of Cherry Pectoral, is Mrs. William P. Martin whose 10 year old daughter, Alice, was kept from school by a severe cough and cold that brought fear of pneumonia.

Doctors ordered the child to bed, with double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral every half hour until relief came—then once every hour until the cold disappeared.

Next day she looked like a different child. In another day or so all traces of the cough and cold had disappeared and she was back in school as well as ever.

Note: See other cases being reported daily in this paper—all certified by the attending physician.

Ayer's Pectoral was hospital certified as the best of different widely used methods tested for head colds, coughs and chest colds because it gave the quickest, surest relief—with absolute safety. It is now featured by all leading druggists.

119 BIRTHS IN YEAR

Stork Busy at City Hospital in 1929, Report Shows

HAD the year 1929 been a second longer, an average of 10 babies a month would have been born at City hospital the last year, according to figures which are being compiled for the annual report of that institution.

As it is, hospital employes must content themselves with having attended the birth of 119 babies during the year, according to W. B. Strayer, director of public safety, under whose department the administration of the hospital falls.

William Russell Amrine, judged to be the first baby of 1930, was born at City hospital one second past midnight on New Year day.

Two Boys Held Here as Runaway Suspects

Two Mansfield youths, believed by officials to have run away from home, were arrested by police here Saturday night and turned over to the Marion County Detention home, where they will be held until Mansfield authorities or their parents come here for them.

Mansfield officials have been notified that the boys are being detained here.

The two were taken into custody by a patrolman at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning, while they were on West Center st. The boys gave names of Milio Cicoloni, 11, and Harry Erskine, 13.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Ads.

Air-cooled engines power the planes now being used by Commander Byrd in his South Pole explorations.

THE SPEEDSTER

A CAR OF BRILLIANT BEAUTY POWERED WITH AN AIRPLANE-TYPE ENGINE

The great acceptance of air-cooling and Franklin's pronounced popularity which resulted in doubled sales in 1929, give you the right to expect something outstandingly progressive. The 1930 Franklin richly justifies your expectations.

To realize that this car has an airplane-type engine, flown in the air and driven on the highways thousands of miles, an engine delivering the greatest power for cylinder capacity of all automobile powerplants—is to understand the great contribution Franklin has made to automotive progress.

This new engine brings to the motor car an endurance and power typical of the airplane—power which remains at the peak throughout the hardest climbs and long, fast runs. You glide quickly to sixty, seventy, eighty with none of the usual experiences that go with great speed—but with complete smoothness, quietness and comfort. To make this ability most effective under all conditions of driving, Franklin gives you a choice of three-speed or four-speed transmissions—both with quiet intermediate gear.

The completeness of Franklin's beauty embraces several body types never before offered. Interesting style innovations—concealed running boards, low hung doors, embossed paneling and belled horizontal louvres—mark this car as definitely in the forefront of fashion. You are cordially invited to attend the first exhibitions. Franklin Automobile Company, Syracuse, New York.

THE FRANKLIN MODEL ONE-FORTY-FIVE INCLUDES THE FOLLOWING TYPES: THE PURSUIT, THE CONVERTIBLE COUPE, THE VICTORIA BROUGHAM, THE SEDAN, THE SEDAN DE LUXE, THE CLUB SEDAN, THE COUPE, THE TOWN SEDAN. New Beauty

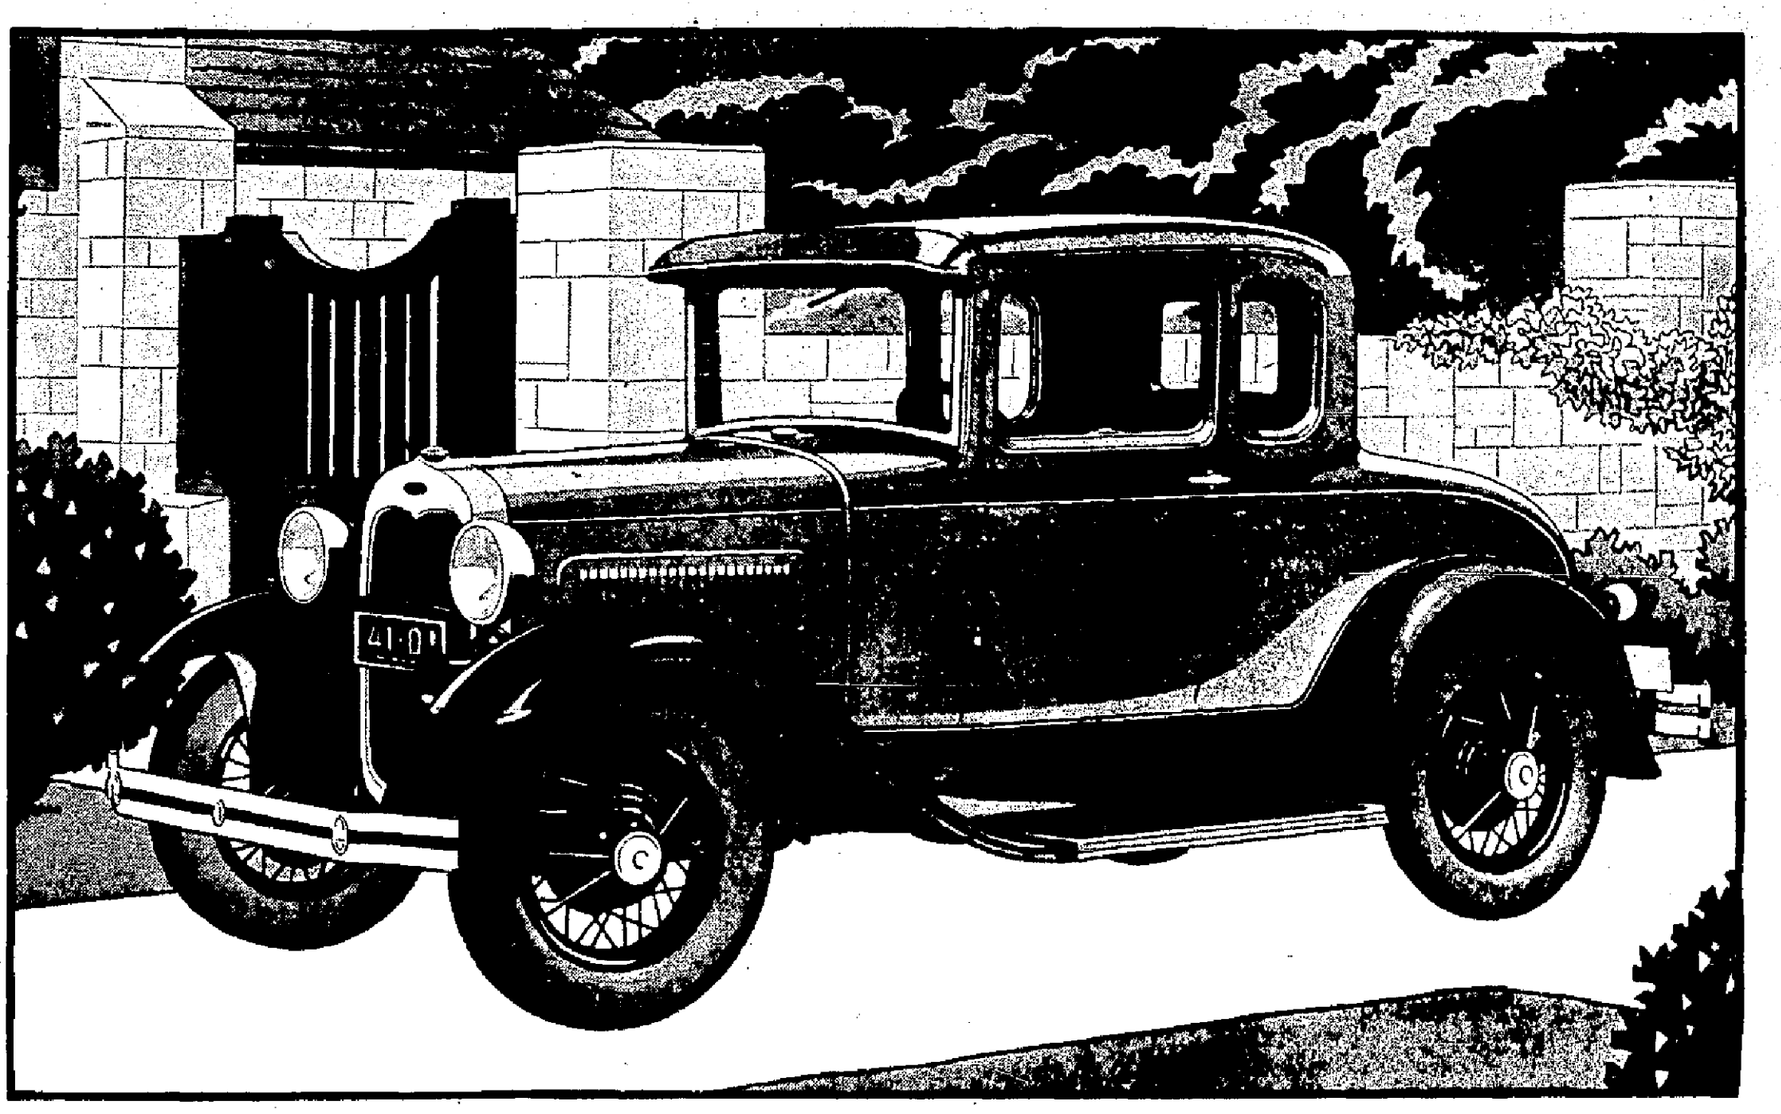
FOR THE NEW FORD



THE NEW FORD COUPE

Flowing grace of line gives style and distinction to new, roomy Ford bodies. Now on display at dealers' showrooms

THE NEW FORD CARS, shown last Tuesday for the first time, have been enthusiastically received throughout the country. Everywhere it is realized that now, more than ever, the new Ford is a "value far above the price."

One of the distinguishing features of the new Ford bodies is the carefully planned harmony of every detail of design. From the new deep radiator to the tip of the curving rear fender there is an unbroken sweep of line—a flowing grace of contour heretofore thought possible only in an expensive automobile.

LOOKING at the new Ford you are impressed instantly by its smart style and compact, substantial sturdiness. For there is about it a certain character or personality which sets it apart and gives it a fresh and lasting beauty. You will take a real pride in this beauty just as you find a real thrill in the alert, capable performance of the car.

All of the new Ford bodies are finished in a variety of colors, with new striping and new streamline moulding. Interiors have more leg room. Closed cars have adjustable front seats. The smaller wheels, with larger tires, bring the car closer to the road, with a consequent gain in riding comfort and safety.

An additional feature of importance is the Rustless Steel used for the radiator shell, head lamps, hub caps, cowl finish strip and tail lamp.

NOTE THESE LOW PRICES

This Rustless Steel will retain its bright, gleaming luster throughout the life of the car. It will not corrode, rust or tarnish in any kind of weather. Its brilliance is permanent. There is no plate to wear off, crack or scale, for it is the same bright metal all the way through.

The use of this Rustless Steel on the new Ford is a reflection of the enduring quality that has been built into every part of the car.

AT today's low prices the new Ford is unquestionably an outstanding value. Check it over feature by feature and you will see that it brings you everything you want or need in a modern automobile:—beauty of line and color . . . safety . . . comfort . . . speed . . . power . . . quick acceleration . . . ease of control . . . economy of operation . . . low up-keep cost . . . typical Ford reliability and long life.

Garrulity of Men and Women.

The controversy has continued since the time when men first got their heads together to exchange ideas and the conclusion is still open, although there is a decided leaning toward the affirmative, Resolved: That women talk more than men. What is the answer?

In spite of the tradition that pictures the gentler sex as garrulous, there are enough people in the world doubting it to warrant constant investigation. Even if the accusation were true, there is always the possibility that the change of the times might have some effect. Dozens of other popular beliefs about women have been reversed or obliterated altogether in the past quarter of a century, and it is not unlikely that this one might go by the board too.

Professor Louise Pound, of the University of Nebraska, believes the whole conception of woman's talkativeness is false. One immediately wonders if Professor Pound is a woman militant. Reports say she is not, that she has no particular case against men and that she simply asks that the whole matter be given the benefit of a fair analysis. She advances no arguments for her case, evidently having confidence in the conclusion which fair observation will bring.

Our conclusion is that speech is as cheap to the man as to the woman, and that the only difference lies in the nature of the subjects treated. Women choose topics frequently uninteresting or offensive to men, and, as a penalty, are accused of talking too much. Their chatting is more irritating to the nerves because of its higher and shriller tone pitch, but the rumbling bass of a group of men may be, and frequently is, just as vicious, as fatuous or inane as anything that may be heard in the cloistered secrecy of an afternoon bridge session attended only by representatives of the very best families.

A contributing factor to the strength of the affirmative is the fact that women are more likely to say what they have to say openly so that the world can hear it and pass judgment. Men frequently restrict their garrulity in public places, only to let loose in the company of their families and friends. But when all is spoken and the total of ideas estimated, it is about an even break. True, there are a few more women in the world, but the difference is balanced by the fact that there are very few women senators. One well-managed filibuster by a skilled windjammer would put the combined efforts of 100 women over a twenty-year period to shame. All in all, men talk as much as women, but they aren't quite so obvious.

Traveling 711,000 Miles an Hour.

Searching for six years with the enthusiastic persistence which marks true followers of science in the hope of discovering the explanation of certain puzzling phenomena in spectroscopic records of starlight, Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the astrophysical observatory at Victoria, British Columbia, and his assistant, Dr. J. A. Pearce, have established the long-suspected fact that the earth has a fourth motion. The former announced the result of their long-continued labors before the convention of the American Society for the Advancement of Science in Des Moines, Iowa, last week.

Heretofore it has been assumed by scientists that the puzzling phenomena noted by them were due to "errors" in their instruments or errors in computations, but the two Canadian scientists have made plain that the instruments of the scientists have not been at fault; that they have been due to the earth's participation in a great galactic rotation, estimated by them to require approximately 200,000,000 years.

The speed of this fourth motion is almost, if not quite, beyond human comprehension. The earth revolves on its axis daily, which means that a point on the equator travels about 23,000 miles in twenty-four hours. It revolves about the sun in a year, at a speed of about 18½ miles a second, which means about 1,200 times that of a passenger train. A third motion is that which it makes with the sun through the universe, but not in the direct path of the great whirl of the universe—the galactic rotation. The fourth movement is that made as the earth maintains its place in our solar system as it moves in the mighty whirl, the speed of which the two Canadians figure at 200 miles a second or 711,000 an hour.

As we understand it, the rather general belief of scientists has been that the motion of our earth through the solar system was a part of this great revolution, the discovery of the two Canadians being that this motion through is not our motion with the universe; that the two are sperate and apart, as demonstrated by six years' study by them of what are known as the B-type stars, the hottest known, which are about 3,000 light years from us. That means that it takes 3,000 years for light, traveling at the rate of 186,300 miles a second, to come from them to us.

A Hoosier, called to Chicago by a business matter, wore a bullet-proof vest of steel and, not content with that, demanded and secured police protection. Maybe he is unduly alarmed, but for the life of us we can't see that a steel vest will offer much protection against a "pineapple," as they speak of a bomb up there.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, denies the report that he will quit the senate because he feels that it is time to make financial provision for the future. We just felt you would repudiate a story like that, James. After all, what is measly pelf alongside glory?

Dogs Should Be Grateful.

The dogs of Ohio—at least those wearing on their collars the new license tags—have reason to be grateful.

The primary purpose of the little metal ovals, of course, is to show the registry number for the current year and the county issuing the license. To this end, the number and the lettering should be deeply stamped and distinct. It is essential, too, that the tags be reasonably small. The state can not well afford to turn out different sized tags to fit the collars of dogs of different sizes, hence good judgment dictates that the tags be small that they may not overlap the collars of the smaller dogs. For convenience and economy alike, the rivet holes in the tags should be so spaced that it may not be necessary for dog owners to punch new holes in the collars of their dogs with each annual change of tags, and care should be taken that these holes are not placed so that the rivets used may not cover the license number.

The great state of Ohio has recognized these needs year after year, but this year it determined to go beyond them, with the result that it has turned out a tag shaped and marked to simulate a dog's head, which doesn't meet any of these recognized needs and as a horrible example is in a class all by itself.

As we stated in the beginning, Ohio dogs have reason to be grateful. They can not possibly be held responsible for the state's venture into the realms of art and novelty.

Under the new traffic laws of Wisconsin women hikers who hail motorists for a ride may be haled into court. A sensible law so far as it goes, but why the discrimination between the sexes?

Former President Coolidge is said to have no inclination whatever to become a member of the senate. Evidently Calvin's experience in presiding over that body has caused him to appreciate that old one to the effect that evil communications corrupt good manners.

The new body model of the Ford car is said to be very fine, but that will hardly make being hit by it any more appealing to us true aristocrats of the land than was contact with the one-time famous tin Lizzie.

It is unofficially stated that the $70,000,000 worth of paintings by Italian old masters, loaned to London by Premier Mussolini for exhibition there is to be brought to this country and shown in New York City. Unfortunately, we are not to be permitted to enrich our art collection by the purchase of any of its gems; the exhibit is not for sale.

A process has been discovered by which pictures may be taken directly upon metal without the use of any film, and a still more remarkable phase of the thing is that they may be developed without danger of being effected by light, which will permit of the elimination of dark rooms for development purposes. When it is pointed out that half tones may be directly produced by the use of "lined" metal, the great speed advantage gained may be appreciated.

Beware of Whooping Cough.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

This is the season when whooping cough makes its appearance. We are always disturbed when we hear the mere mention of an epidemic of anything. Almost every winter, in every community, there will be a more or less serious invasion of the schools by this or some other disease.

Whooping cough is believed by some scientists to be due to a germ called the "bacillus pertussis." This big name has a dreadful sound, but, although the ailment is an uncomfortable one, it is not necessarily dangerous. This is true if the patient has the best of care both during the run of the disease and during convalescence.

It is natural to think of whooping cough as exclusively a disease of childhood. As a matter of fact some of the worst cases I ever saw were those in grown persons. For an older person it may be a very serious trouble.

Whooping cough begins like a cold, with a running nose and redness of the eyes. There is likely to be fever and a dry, hard cough.

It is essential that the patient rest in bed during the acute stage and that he have fresh air day and night. He should have the sunniest room in the house, and be separated from the rest of the family. This is important, because as everyone knows, the disease is contagious.

In a week or two the cough gets worse, and soon the peculiar "whoop" is noticed. This is the chief sign of the disease. There are deep, prolonged intakes of air, with spasmodic and violent repetitions of the attacks. The child may feel as if he would die, indeed he may be very greatly frightened. Vomiting may follow the attack.

The patient is likely to lose flesh and be in a generally run-down condition. His broken rest and loss of food account for this.

This stage lasts about a month. The final period generally lasts several weeks. The disease always runs its course, but sensible care will lessen the severity of the paroxysms and maintain the general health.

Fresh air and sunshine are absolute essentials. Select a sunny room for the patient and have it well ventilated. Unless fever persists, the child is better playing about. In winter he should be warmly dressed and out-of-doors.

The poor little victim should be kept away from other children until the whooping spells have stopped. He should protect his nose and mouth while coughing. In whooping cough, the discharges which are coughed into the atmosphere or conveyed on soiled nails or linen may carry the infection to another. Therefore, great care must be taken in this matter.

The patient's health must be safeguarded as the disease abates. It is necessary to make sure the recovery is complete. The disease causes such a run-down condition that the patient must be built up with nourishing food, plenty of fresh air and sunshine, and cod-liver oil. He will need plenty of milk and fresh eggs. Much sleep and rest will help him to recuperate.

Editorial Opinion.

MAKING WAR IMPOSSIBLE.

On landing in New York General Smuts made a frank and manly statement of his objects in coming to America. He proposes to speak his honest thought on the League of Nations and on other means of preventing war, but he is not here as the agent of any cause, least of all to instruct Americans in their duty. He himself considers the league a great success, despite all shortcomings, but whether the United States is ever to join it is our affair, not his. His outlook upon the world and upon the future of international relations is filled with hope, mainly because, as he believes, war has been made impossible.

The chief reason which he gives for this confidence is that war has become both "physically and morally impossible," on account of the new devices for wholesale destruction which have made it too horrible for men in their senses ever to contemplate or undertake. By so much General Smuts sides with those who hold that war will be ruled out hereafter if only because of its "horrors." But the term is relative. General Smuts recalls the Boer war of thirty years ago, in which he participated, and declares that, by comparison, it was "really a gentlemanly thing." He adds, with a kind of soldierly humor: "I am not sure I didn't like it." This reminds one of the fear expressed by General Robert E. Lee in our civil war that fighting battles and conducting great strategic manoeuvres might become so fascinating to the officers engaged that they would come to think of it as about the finest sport on earth.

Certainly, at the time, the Boer war was not regarded as gentlemanly. What with the concentration camps and the starving of women and children, it was cried out upon as one of the most cruel and barbaric ever waged. Possibly to a future generation poison gas will seem no more terrible than did smokeless powder when it was first used. To say this is not to doubt that for a long time the possibilities of wholesale torture and slaughter in war will have a powerful deterrent effect. That will be true for several years to come, but whether the next generation will be completely swayed by this argument no one can predict.

It is in the known consequences of war, more than in its imagined terrors, that we have a guarantee of lasting peace. It has been found out that war is stupid. It does not pay. Its frightful financial penalties rest upon the victors almost equally with the defeated. It used to be said that Germany regarded war, in the light of her own experience, as her most promising means of trade expansion and prosperity. No nation could today rest under that pitiable delusion. War is the worst investment known to civilization. This is perhaps the strongest reason for pushing ahead with every organization and device—like the League of Nations, the Locarno treaties, the Kellogg-Briand treaty, naval conferences, the World court—in order to make it probable that resort to war will never be necessary. Certain wars are already pronounced "unthinkable." But it will still take a lot of thinking, followed up by building of secure bulwarks of peace, in order to make sure that they can absolutely be prevented.—New York Times.

HIGHER EDUCATION BY RADIO.

Secretary Wilbur of the federal department of the interior has had the good sense and the candor to frown upon a recommendation by a subcommittee of a national advisory committee on education that a radio university, with an initial endowment of $40,000,000, be established, or under the auspices of the national government.

The project is magnificent and decidedly up to date in a technical sense. Education by radio is making headway steadily, and undoubtedly has a great future. But there are many questions—moral, political, pedagogical and administrative—to be considered and answered before any attempt is made to organize a great radio university. Local needs and ideas must be harmonized with regional and national points of view. Abuses must be anticipated and prevented.

An alternative to the grandiose proposal is the suggestion that the federal office of education create a new, small unit for research, information and experimentation with a view to the gradual development of a plan of radio education. To this no exception is likely to be taken.—Chicago News.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A psychologist at the University of Illinois has been experimenting with the comparative intelligence of men and rats. Rats are made to find their way to food through a maze of passages. Men feel their way with eyes blindfolded. Both men and rats made mistakes in the experiment. Some men proved to be quicker, smarter than others. Some rats proved to be smarter than others. So all through nature. No equality. The smart beat the stupid. Rats or men. Much talk of equality by public speakers seeking applause or office. There should be equality—before the law—even if there isn't. There should be equality of opportunity, which, of course, there isn't. As to any other equality, nature never intended any. It is just the strangely confusing dream of men, from which many have never awakened.

"Sometimes the smile of a woman can do more to settle a strike than all the arguments a man can make. Sometimes a capitalist, very 'set' in his mind, looks at a woman's smile and says, 'Maybe I'm wrong.'"

Secretary of Labor Davis often entrusts knotty strike and labor problems to women conciliators. Not only are women better able to handle women strikers—they are better with men.

Perhaps Secretary Davis' discovery bears out the scientific Dr. Wiggam's declaration that man is not a rational creature. He is little guided by reason. He is swayed by emotion.

You measure the life of a motor car by the number of miles it has traveled, the number of hours it has been operated, the speed at which it has been driven. To be accurate, the life of a man ought to be measured in somewhat the same fashion. Attorney General Davis, of Florida, an observant man, writes that "the man of today who lives a year is living the equivalent of five years in activity, travel and association, as compared with a century ago."

Today's man piles up mileage at distressing speed. You think you are fifty, but you are more likely 250 compared with your great-grandfather.

And are we having much more fun than great-grandfather did? He traveled slowly, but he better enjoyed the scenery. No use quoting statistics to prove the average length of life has increased. The figures are made by the control of epidemics and the fewer deaths among babies. The death rate between forty-five and fifty-five is appalling. The motor is being driven too fast. Mileage and number of hours of operation are too great.

Many subway passengers drop off to sleep and ride past their stations daily. The close air in the tubes induces a lethargy, but most of the victims are those who have been out celebrating. On the other hand, there are innumerable subwayfarers who are able to fall asleep and awaken as the train pulls into their station. It is a phenomenon they do not understand themselves. But they never fail to drift back to consciousness with a sudden start in time to scramble off.

What really started all these subway reflections was a trivial incident in a subway train late last evening. A one-armed man took a seat opposite and proceeded to roll up an umbrella as neatly as those in the store windows. I didn't know it could be done with two hands without a couple of helpers.

Charm of Genoa.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Genoa, where Columbus spent his early boyhood and where he became imbued with the restless urge to sail out to new lands, is sometimes said to be the only port through which one should enter Italy. For it is in Genoa that one finds, more completely than in any other Italian city, that fascinating combination of the old and the new.

An illustration of the mingling of the past and the present is to be found in the Piazza de Ferrari, the largest and most important plaza in Genoa's business section. On one side of the Piazza are monuments of old Genoa—palaces mostly, whose walls are still standing as they did centuries ago, but which have been converted into business houses or government offices. On the opposite side of the Piazza rises new Genoa—the Teatro Carlo Felice, the Academy of Belle Arts, the new Bourse—the European designation of stock exchange—and the postoffice.

Although the Piazza de Ferrari may be said to represent rebuilt Genoa—the new, the modern—old customs and trades still abound. One of the most colorful of these is the flower market. Italian women—big, fat jovial women, little old wizened women, all types—are the flower merchants of the Piazza de Ferrari. Each stands guard over a huge wicker basket in which flowers of all kinds and colors have been piled. Around them surges the hustle and bustle of modern commerce and business, but life is not so fast and mechanical that the business men rushing from the Bourse, the postoffice or some other stronghold of modern trade and finance, do not find time to stop and buy a few flowers from these itinerant vendors.

Yes, Genoa, above all other cities of Italy, is a combination of the old and new. Ancient buildings are still being used, many old customs are still respected, but there is one link with past centuries which is stronger than all others, and that is the home of Christopher Columbus. This house, at No. 37 Vico di Morcento, still stands. A later article to appear on this page will tell more of this historic old spot.

PROHIBITION DUE TO DOMINATE CONGRESS

Ghost of Politics Which Walks for 470 Members This Year Also To Lurk

...with congress stam... ...on what it was doing, ... accomplished in eight ... closed doors, a pre... was hastily rushed to ... and was delivered to the ...

... thought it an undig... ... as well as bad pol... ...ded that inasmuch ... the commission can ... please everyone, to ... report at this ... to congressional ... would merely add fuel to the flame, and give opponents much additional ammunition.

Be that as it may, the report is in President Hoover's hands, and, as Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, author of the five-and-ten law, recently announced after long conference with Chairman Wickersham it does not pass "upon the wisdom or the unwisdom of the eighteenth amendment."

Kindles Additional Fire

Even the leakage of this much of the preliminary report has kindled additional fire in congress. Anti-prohibitionists as well as the moderates on both sides of the question immediately started questioning the good faith of the commission, and intimating that it was "afraid" to pass directly upon the issue of whether prohibition can be enforced."

The attacks to which the commission has been subjected since Jones made his announcement were accepted by the dissenters within the commission as proof of the wisdom of their position—that it were better not to make any report at all at this time. And the furore hasn't contributed to the harmony among the members.

The criticism of the commission hasn't been confined to the anti-prohibitionists alone. Much of it has come from the moderate drys themselves, who have been hoping to see a positive rather than a negative report from the Wickersham group.

Glass Becomes Critic

Such a consistent dry as Senator Carter Glass, Democrat of Virginia, has been a leading critic. Glass contends the commission was created to investigate prohibition and nothing else, and that it has not fulfilled its mission.

"Why have a commission at all if it isn't going to investigate and pass upon the facts of prohibition?" asks Glass.

Meanwhile, another fight is coming over appropriations for enforcement next year.

Senator Harris, Democrat of Georgia, reiterated today his determination of forcing millions upon the administration to "make a real effort to enforce the law."

"Some of us want to see this law actually enforced for a change," he said today, "and we are determined to give the administration enough men and money to make the attempt. No such attempt has yet been made."

With a budget that skates close to the treasury dead-line, administration officials do not view Harris' proposal with much enthusiasm.

MARION COMPANY HAS RAPID GROWTH

Fairfield Engineering Co. Force Increased from 20 to 165 in Six Years

January, 1925, a month before the plant was moved to Marion, J. B. Bray, secretary, joined the company. The fourth officer actively engaged in the company's business is Earl D. Stearns, vice president in charge of contract engineering work.

These four officials, Walker, Brown, Bray, and Stearns together with E. L. Bush, J. W. Jacoby, and Millard Hunt form the board of directors.

The Fairfield Engineering Co. got its name from the county in which it was founded, Lancaster, the birthplace of the company, is the county seat of Fairfield county.

When the Fairfield Co. moved to Marion it occupied a new building, 90 by 240 feet in dimension. This building contained all the factory departments as well as the offices. The plant shortly outgrew these quarters, and in 1923 the first step in an expansion program was taken. That year a machine shop adjoining the main structure was built. The shop was 60 by 65 feet in dimension. At the same time a two-story office building was erected.

Enlargement Expected

The space limitations of the office building are already recognized and it is probably only a matter of a short time until additional space will be provided.

The factory proper outgrew its increased space and last summer the second addition was erected. The last addition was 65 by 160 feet and increased the floor space of the factory to approximately 55,000 square feet.

Among the best-known railroad customers of the Fairfield Co. are the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Pere Marquette, the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the L. & N. Fairfield recently installed conveying equipment in the municipal light plants at Galion and Bellefontaine. The state hospital at Gallipolis as well as the state highway department use Fairfield equipment.

Conveyors designed for handling coal, stone and ashes are the principal products of the Fairfield Engineering Co. For these products the company finds a market over the entire section of the United States east of the Mississippi. Sales offices are maintained in New York City, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

Railroads, power plants, boiler houses, sand and gravel plants, building and supply dealers, retail coal dealers, industrial plants, coal mine operators, and state highway departments are all potential customers of the Fairfield Co., as in each of these places there are materials to be moved that can be handled more quickly with machinery than with man-power.

List of Products

Among Fairfield's products are mine car loaders, portable belt conveyors for sand and gravel, locomotive cinder conveyors and locomotive coaling equipment, portable conveyors for transferring coal from gondolas to trucks for delivery.

Besides these products Fairfield is developing a feed mixer. This machine is proving popular with mills and feed concerns, according to Fairfield officials. Already it is being used in many states of the union.

The mixer, known as the Haines mixer, has helped the company make its 1929 business increase 50 per cent over the business for 1928. According to company officials 1929 was the best year in the company's history.

CHINESE mobs have wrecked an English Baptist mission, church, hospital and school near Tsinanfu.

Good missionaries, working to heal the bodies and save the souls of Chinese, are victims of bitter anti-Christian propaganda started by the "patriotic" Kuomintang.

* * *

The anti-Christian drive is headed openly by Hutsai-Yuan, commissioner of education, which gives an official character to the attack on the Christians. None of the latter was killed. They were requested to get out, their buildings wrecked.

* * *

In judging the Chinese mob we should ask ourselves what a Christian mob probably would do to Chinese missionaries here, seeking to convert Christian children to the Chinese religion wholesale.

And we must remember that it has not been divinely revealed to the Chinese, as to us, that ours is the only true religion.

* * *

They take Confucius and his teachings as seriously as we take our Christianity.

GENERAL SMUTS, from South Africa, traveling here, congratulates us on joining the World Court and predicts that entrance into the League of Nations will be the next step.

* * *

He is a little ahead of time, even with the court, for we are not in yet. But his forecast of events is probably accurate.

A new chapter in American national life will start when we begin getting orders and decisions from across the water.

* * *

Various southern and southwestern states will fight the effects of union labor to organize their territories.

Chambers of commerce in Texas and Oklahoma reaffirm their determination to uphold the open shop. A long industrial fight is foreseen.

* * *

In New England there are feeble indications of that "civil war" which Ida Tarbell thinks may be born of prohibition.

After the recent killing of rum runners by coast guardsmen, posters inviting enlistment in the coast guard were torn down in Boston.

The government, wisely avoiding conflict, has closed and, temporarily, abandoned the Boston coast guard recruiting station.

There will not be any civil war, and prohibition will stay in the Constitution. But there will be a good deal of unpleasant discussion and shooting.

JEWS SEE SPAIN AS LAND OF HOPE

Nation Which Closed Gates in 1492 Ready To Welcome Them Again

100,000 Jews a year came to this country, the editor said. Now the American quota permits only 15,000 Jewish immigrants.

Dr. Margoshes said that the movement for the return of the Jews to Spain had no connection with the Zionist movement.

"For some time, it was hoped that Palestine would assimilate the Jews but now we realize that we must go slow in Palestine," he said.

(Editor's note: This is the first of two articles revealing the details of the history-making plan to open up Spain as a haven of opportunity for the Jews of eastern Europe. It is based on an exclusive interview with one of the leaders of the movement.)

WILL CELEBRATE DRY ANNIVERSARY

Ministers Here Plan Ringing of Bells To Mark Tenth Year of Prohibition

The tenth anniversary of national prohibition will be celebrated by the Marion County Ministerial association on Jan. 16 at 10 o'clock, according to an announcement made at a meeting this afternoon. For 10 minutes after 10 o'clock, church bells will ring in every church in the city.

The Rev. W. N. LaMaster, pastor at Epworth M. E. church, addressed the ministers this morning on "Evangelism in This Modern Age," after which a discussion was held. Devotionals by the Rev. W. Martell George, of Wesley M. E. church, opened the meeting.

Plan Indorsed

A motion was made and passed that the association indorse the record of the committee on evangelism for the work of 1930 and 1931, submitted by the Rev. H. F. Weckmueller, of First Reformed church. A thorough report outlining the work of evangelism for the two years, was given.

Notified of Convention

The members were urged by the president, the Rev. J. M. Speakers at this large convention will include more than 50 men and women nationally and internationally known in church work.

On account of the conventions in Columbus, the association will meet Jan. 27 for the next meeting, instead of Jan. 20.

"Housebroken"

A Blue-Ribbon Serial Story

SHE WANTED TO GUIDE HIS EVERY THOUGHT

BY PAUL HERVEY FOX

INSTALLMENT XXVIII

It seemed to her the only possible solution of a situation that had been fraught with unhappiness. She had calculated her words in the hope of arousing his suspicion, bringing him up here on the run. Once he smelled the smoke would be blown away and Suzanne's grief at an end.

But had Tom taken the false hint? Was the connection had been broken and had effect instantly. On the other hand, it might have been the work of some control. He might not even have heard her words or taken the meaning she had given them by the very tone.

If the message had carried, however, the domestic crisis in the lives of the hapless would soon be over. Then Bruce would also be free. Kathleen's eyes danced. It had been rather a cruel trick he had played! She could forgive Suzanne for using the weapon of jealousy far more readily. But Bruce did not deserve to be let off so easily. Kathleen bit her lip and took counsel with herself.

When Capt. Jones had at last shut off his engine and glided gently into the cove Kathleen saw that the young man of whom she had been thinking was there to meet them.

The captain warded off collision with a boat hook.

"'Pears to me I'm gettin' to be a regular visitor," he sang out. Bruce nodded and smiled, but his eyes were on Kathleen's face. He bent toward her, holding out a hand of assistance. She was on the shore. The engine of the launch broke into life again and the boat backed out, churning the water.

Bruce stood squarely in the path, seeming to block the way. Kathleen noticed that he was scowling, but it was as if from nervousness.

One again she asked herself why she found him so appealing. She had known many good looking boys, but none that touched her in quite the way Bruce did. He seemed so spoiled, she thought, and yet she did not mind. She could not analyze her feelings, nor did she care to. But she felt strangely happy. He was here. She knew that indisputably. But first she must punish him! It wasn't fair that he should get off scot-free after playing that heartless trick!

She gave him a cool look. "Has anything happened?" she asked.

"No. But I've been waiting for you ever since you left." He spoke with a kind of helplessness now, concealing nothing. "I kept thinking you weren't coming back."

"Really? Why should I go away without saying anything?"

"No reason. But I thought about it just the same."

"O!" She started to climb the path.

"Don't go—don't go up to the house yet."

"Why not?"

"Because I want to talk to you."

"There's nothing to say—nothing we need to say."

"I mean—about yesterday."

"I knew you meant that. Im willing to forget the whole thing. You were probably upset by the storm."

"I was upset!"

"You must have been. You wouldn't have—have done what you did if you had been in your right senses."

"His eyes grew dark. "I'd do just as I did before—if it happened all over again!" he said, thickly.

"O! In that case I can't even make any excuses for you. Please let me go. You're in the way."

"Why are you being so rough on me?" he burst out. "Don't you know what I'm trying to tell you. That I'm mad about you, crazy about you? Why, I love you, Kathleen!"

She would not let him see her eyes. Yet it was strange how steady her voice was!

"Do you think thats a compliment? O, how I pity poor Suzanne!"

"Listen, I never loved her. I—well, I can't tell you, but it's really all right."

"Stop!" she cried. "O, stop!" She had not suspected her dramatic talent heretofore. "You tell me you love me—and you're willing to desert a woman who has given up her home for you, her whole life! You must be mad to think I'd ever listen to you!"

He confronted her wretchedly.

"Kathleen, you've got to give me a chance!" No one will ever feel about you the way I do!"

"Really? I shall have to remember that when I reach China."

"China?" he repeated, bewilderedly.

"I expect to go there again in the near future."

He looked at her blankly. Kathleen brushed past him and pushed her way on up the path.

It had been a warm day, but now the heat was going out of the sky. Bruce threw himself down in the pine woods, thinking hard.

Confound Suzanne Davies—it was all her fault! If he had ever suspected for one moment she could be so pig-headed as to sit here forever he would never have done Tom the favor of running off with her. Perhaps it had been a mean trick, but she was paying him back with interest!

It had ruined him with Kathleen—and about Kathleen couldn't even be articulate. She was all that mattered. He felt if he didn't have her he would die. He felt poetic and sad; he felt like an invalid for whom there is no hope of recovery.

He couldn't tell Kathleen the truth. For one thing, she would probably despise him for having done what he had. A woman wouldn't understand those things. . . . Besides, it would be pretty traitorous to Tom. If Suzanne ever found out she would never really trust Tom again. She might even stop loving him. That was the way things happened. That was what people called disillusionment.

But he caught feebly at one hope. If he could ever get Suzanne to go back to Tom, just as the original plan had been, in time Kathleen might look more tolerantly on the adventure of the island. He would follow her to China, of course. A thought came into his mind stabbed him. Perhaps she was going out to China to marry some one! Perhaps that was the only reason!

There was no time to be lost. He'd make one final effort to bring Suzanne to her senses. If that failed he'd wire Tom to come up and admit defeat. And Tom was just obstinate enough to refuse if he were asked. What a couple! They deserved each other.

But how was he ever going to make Suzanne give up? If she had lasted this long, was there anything left he could do? She made him think of the proverbial stone waiting in patience through the years until the water had worn it away. He saw her in a wig and a wheel chair, begging Tom to take her back at last, while he leaned on his crutches.

He put these pictures out of his thoughts, rapped his throbbing head with his knuckles. He must get rid of Suzanne, somehow, some way! Until he did, Kathleen wouldn't even look at him.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

CHRISTMAS is over and New Years is over, and I have got Jubilee back, and Youniss don't care about my spending my Christmas money to buy an advertisement to get him back instead of buying her something. She is that kind of a girl. A fella certainly feels funny when he looks at a girl like Youniss. He wants to grab his knife right out of his pocket and cut her name on the nearest tree or fence and his name with a heart around them both. And he wishes that someonce that he could lick would come up and just say something to her so he could hit him so hard he wouldn't stop spinning till he was out of sight and he feels like he could lick anybody if it was for her.

It was not as cold as it had been when we woke up yesterday morning, but it was also a whole lot colder than it had been too. I got up and put my britches on the end of myself where my shirt don't reach and then I opened the window and let Jubilee down and pulled the rope back and hid it. Then I went down and done my stuff and fed my face and got washed by my ant just the way she used to wash me last year. I got kinda sore once when she rubbed my nose so hard she almost turned it upside down. I asted her if she had ever got washed the way she was washing me and she said she was washed that way every day of her life. Then I said I was thankful I was a man, and when she said why I said so that if washing made me have a face like her's I could cover it up with whiskers, then she twisted my ear and when I hollered I got a mouth full of soap. When a fella is getting washed by his ant is no time for him to mush with her.

Today was Monday, and the Lost Bar of Tripe had a turker in school and Feeble set in front of him and he gave her a poke in the back and when she turned around to scowl at him he held the foot in one hand and pulled the cords with the the other till it almost grabbed her nose. She jumped and yelped and the teacher made the Lost Baz of Tripe take it and put it on her desk and stand in the corner. We were all looking at him when the teacher said, "What is the matter now Feeby?" and we all looked around and Feeble was holding her stummick with both hands and she looked crosseyed and said, "The matter is that you have got to put that thing out of my sight or I am going to be sick all over his room, that is what the matter," and the teacher grabbed it and run and threw it out of the window and told Feeble to go outside and get a little air. Then pretty soon we seen Feeble being chaseted by our room door by Mush's wife, who only had one shoe on. After school I asted Feeble what she done to Mush's wife, and she wunk at me and said, "You'd be supprized." I bet I would, too. Went to bed early.

END FAT

THE WAY IS SHORT AND EASY

MOST women in these days know the right way to fight fat. Some are told by their physicians; some by friends. And for 22 years millions have been reading about Marmola. Those who starve to reduce, or who don't reduce, form a small minority now.

This has come about since science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in an under-active gland. All the world over, they who treat obesity now aim to correct that cause.

The method they use is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. They have told the results to others. So the changed conditions seen today are largely due to Marmola.

A book in each box of Marmola gives the formula and explains the reasons for all good results. When you gain new youth and beauty, new health and vigor, you know why. No abnormal exercise or diet is advised. This modern method combats the cause.

Marmola has for many years held top place in this field. Anyone who is over-fat should test it, in justice to herself. It is not only the easy but the right way to reduce. Learn how much it means to you. Start now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is not well stocked will get you

Love's Reawakening

The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Roderick Decides He Doesn't Want to Fight Junior

I WAS too experienced in the many little ways of children to spoil Roderick's martyrdom too suddenly. His fib and gratitude because of my offer to provide him with the tools by which he longed had enambled him to rise to a real height of self-sacrifice, even though it was based upon the false premise that he was wholly to blame for the fight between himself and Junior. I meant to utter no protest against his self-incrimination until I had listened to Junior's story, which from past experience I was sure would be a truthful one.

My little lad has many faults, but lying is not one of them. Always we have been able to believe his account of any happening, even where grown-ups are involved, for his memory is accurate, and both his instincts and his training from babyhood have made him observant.

But one remark of his I could contradict, and I proceeded to do so with dispatch and emphasis.

"I told you downstairs, Roderick," I said, "that neither you nor Junior was to receive any 'licking' for your fight. So put that out of your mind. I am going to give you both some punishment, as I told you before, because you forgot to be gentlemen and hit each other in a lady's house. But it won't be a very hard punishment, because this is the first time it happened, and I'm sure neither of you will forget again. Now will you sit quietly here while I go and talk to Junior?"

"Yes, Aunt Margaret." The voice was subdued—and relieved.

"Uncle Richard will come back and keep you company and in a few minutes I shall come and fetch you up to the room where you're going to sleep."

"Is that Junior's room?" The voice held no antagonism, simply childish curiosity.

"Yes, dear," I turned to the door, but halted with my hand on the knob as Roderick spoke again.

"About—fighting it out—with—Junior," he said haltingly. "I don't think we have to, unless you want us to."

There was so much unconscious hopefulness in the last words, that I almost failed in choking back a chuckle as I opened the door.

Then to Tell Dicky

"We'll see about that later, Roderick," I told him as I hastily closed the door and fairly ran to my father's room where Dicky awaited me.

"Prithee, fair dame, why so mirthful?" Dicky eyed me curiously as he answered my knock and found me leaning against the lintel spent with laughter which was as much the half hysterical outlet of tautened nerves as it was mirth.

"I haven't time to tell you now," I said, "for——"

"Ah!" he interrupted with a grin. "I see. Circuit judge on her rounds."

"I'll give you a sentence for contempt of court if you don't shut up!" I told him with an answering grin.

"Just for that!" Dicky caught at me, but I eluded his arms, though I longed to go into them, and darted back through the door.

"I never 'pet' during office hours," I murmured demurely. "Will you please go back to Roderick for a few minutes. I'll come and take him away as soon as I've had a little session with Junior. And when both boys are asleep, I'll tell you the whole story, if you'll keep awake till then."

Junior Is Anxious

"I'll even try to do that for your sweet sake," he intoned. "No task too arduous."

But I was already down the hall, smiling at his bombast, for I knew as well as he that if he ever closed his eyes before midnight he was ill or inordinately fatigued from some long stretch of work.

Junior was sitting where I had left him, his face screwed up ludicrously in a patent effort at concentration. But at my entrance, he jumped up from his chair and rushed toward me, hugging me ecstatically.

"I thought you'd never come," he said reproachfully.

"I know," I acknowledged. "I did not think I would be gone so long. But it has given you more time to think things out, hasn't it?"

"Yes." He brought up a sigh apparently from his heels. "I guess I have everything straight now."

There was a gloominess in his voice which I understood. Somewhere in his retrospection and introspection he had discovered that he was not an entirely innocent party to the quarrel between himself and Roderick and he decided the confession of his culpability to me. But he did not delay his story.

"It was this way," he began and gave me the same story which Roderick already had related to me up to the time where his cousin had called him a sissy.

"Then I got awful mad, Mother," my small son said shamefacedly, "and I called him a 'awful' name. It's just a terrible name, worse than any of Roderick's." There was distinct complacence at his superior vocabulary subconsciously mingled with his equally patent sense of guilt.

"What was the name, Junior?" I asked.

"Must I tell?" he answered.

"Yes," I returned inexorably.

"Then, put your ear down," he said, and I saw with amazement that his face was very red. "I don't want to say it out loud."
